Additional voting stations is a possibility

Public asked county for additional voting stations at the last council meeting

Manika Lufkin
Western Review

At the March 3 Brazeau County council meeting, council passed a motion to apply for more than one voting station per division.

Currently, the legislation allows for one voting station - with six voting stations in each division. An in-private session was held at the last meeting where council discussed voting station issue after residents have demanding to see more than six voting stations, like they had in the past as in the case of 2013 general election.

After council came out of the private discussion a motion was passed that county apply to municipal affairs for an order authorizing county to pass a bylaw that would allow the returning officer designate more than one voting station per division.

At the public input session that morning, council heard from some residents about the issue. Resident Heidi Swan put forward her concerns to the council and asked by the extension period that was granted to the county was not used to get more voting stations in each division.

Later on in the meeting, a letter from resident Phyllis Schmitt came forward. "If the reason for eliminating five of the 13 stations is cost, this should have no bearing whatsoever since the decision infringes upon the fundamental rights of voters by taking away their access to voting stations," said the letter.

During the question period from the media, Western Review asked if cost was a factor when the decision to not have additional voting stations was considered, to which Acting Town Clerk Shirley Mahan said cost was not a factor.

Councillors assured residents that the council will re-visit the issue before they went into the private session.

In a recent interview with the Western Review, director of corporate services for Brazeau County, Brenda Christie said at the Jan. 20 regular council meeting, a resolution was passed to have the by-election on March 2015.

"Due to the timing involved in getting ministerial approval and passing the bylaw, administration did not recommend having additional voting stations," said Christie.

IT'S TIME TO SAVE OUR COUNTY

We need to take action now

We've lost a year, very little has happened in fact, we've gone backwards.

What's the Solution?

1. Listen to the creative ideas of our citizens including our youth and seniors, then implement investment.
2. Roll back council wages by 10%.
3. Take immediate action by reinvesting the rainy day reserves into county infrastructure. This can help private sector jobs and buffer the recession.
4. Streamline our government to be as efficient as possible. Remove all government red tape that has become a burden to our development.
5. Make economic development actually economical.
6. Reduce all fees and get rid of permits that increase cost, delays and public frustration.
7. Make affordable housing actually affordable. Eliminate costly studies and fees that drive up the cost of development.
8. Lower the residential tax rate by a minimum 30% a year until we have the lowest residential tax rate and lowest cost of living in the Province.

These first steps are simple & attainable

Safety concerns at Thunder in the Valley

Western Review

A safety concern was brought forward at a joint council meeting on March 5 in regard to the marketing of the Thunder in the Valley event.

Brazeau County, Town of Drayton Valley and Village of Drayton Valley and District Chamber of Commerce have rejected the funding proposal but will be asking the chamber for clear business plans.

People said the chamber will have an effective and stronger impact if they are on board as well.

"So that's an invitation to the county," said Mayor Glenn McLean.

ANIMAL CONTROL BYLAW
As it stands currently, both the Town of Drayton Valley and Brazeau County have interim contracts to receive animal control services from Graulac Kennels.

An animal control issue has been an ongoing one in both the town and the county with residents wishing to see removal of the current officer.

Agenda document presented a number of solutions including sending out a new request for proposal, outsourcing contractor from neighbouring community or building an animal control facility. Mayor Glenn McLean said both town and county could talk about the issue with their respective council to see if there is room for collaboration in the area.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY
Drayton Valley Historical Society is part of Central Alberta Regional Museums Network (CARIMN) - an agency that has bi-monthly meetings. One of the upcoming meetings is scheduled to be held in Drayton Valley on June 2. The local museum will open in May for the summer.

CLARITY ON BUS HUB
Brazeau County Acting Reeve Shirley Mahan asked for clarity on rules and regulations and county's role in the upcoming bus hub.

In January this year, after many years of discussion, the old 11W Pickup site in town was approved to be a location for about 28 buses running every school day dubbed 'Tas hah'.

Mayor Glenn McLean noted that there hasn't been an agreement or a deal made so far. The town had signed a letter of intent with the Wild Rose School Division to work together.

"It is an effort to accommodate 1,342 kids who ride the buses every day during the year. It just so happens that 1,300 of them live in the county. The town of Drayton Valley thought that it might be an appropriate opportunity to ask county council if they thought it was important for safety and protection of their kids to participate in the project. They can say 'yes' and they can say 'no'. That's up to them," said McLean while answering a question put forward by a resident.

County Councillor Rita Mok said she would like to see a county representative sit in on the discussions.

"Because, we as [a] county are being asked to be part of this financially, so I would like to see somebody from county become part of discussions so we know what's going on," said Mok.

TOWN INVITES COUNTY TO WORK TOGETHER

Drayton Valley economic development officer Sherry Poole said statistics show that the Drayton Valley and District Chamber of Commerce has about 125 members out of about 1,600 businesses between the town and the county.

"That's less than 10 per cent so there's room for growth," she said.

Acting Reeve Shirley Mahan announced that the county councillors have rejected the funding proposal but will be asking the chamber for clear business plans.

People said the chamber will have an effective and stronger impact if they are on board as well.

"So that's an invitation to the county," said Mayor Glenn McLean.

ANIMAL CONTROL BYLAW
As it stands currently, both the Town of Drayton Valley and Brazeau County have

TOURISM AUTHORITY DRAFT PRESENTED

A draft version of terms of reference for the Regional Tourism Authority (RTA) was presented at the joint council meeting. The presentation also included a funding model and a proposed 3-year budget. The draft was open for discussion for input from all municipalities.

RECREATION AND CULTURE COST SHARING AGREEMENT

Administration staff from the Town of Drayton Valley and the Brazeau County have been working together to put forward a cost sharing agreement between the two municipalities. The agreement was brought forward so both municipalities can present it to their respective council.

The agreement shared operating cost between the two municipalities equally. It was noted that Brazeau County's share (BCC) was not part of the agreement.

Fire Services responded to a residential alarm call on Feb. 25 that turned out to be false. The department was called around 12 a.m. on TWP. 485. When the crews arrived at the scene, they didn't find anything. It was determined there was an alarm malfunction.

Another residential call came in on Feb. 26 around 1 p.m. on 41A Ave in Drayton Valley. The local station responded to the call. When they arrived at the scene, it was determined that a family member at the residence accidentally activated the alarm.

On Feb. 27 around 10 a.m. crews were stood down while heading to 41 Ave. In Drayton Valley. It was determined to be a false alarm set off by the cleaning staff at the residence.

Fire crews in station two - Breton responded to a call on Hwy. 616 on the same day. Once crews arrived at the scene it was found to be a false alarm.

MEDICAL ASSIST
On March 2 around 7 p.m. crews responded to a medical call coming out of the Buck Creek area. Once they arrived on scene, they saw their assistance wasn't needed as there were two ambulances present. No additional resources were required from the fire crew.

DO NOT SKATE
Deputy fire chief of training

Kamil Lasek reminded residents to read the signs and not skate if posted signs say it is unsafe.

He explained that with the weather fluctuations, although it may seem that the ice is thick in one place, there could be differences in thickness throughout the mass. "One step may be good but the next might be weak and someone could potentially fall through," he said.

Omniplex gym numbers down

News from governance and priorities meeting at the town

Michelle Latta
Western Review

Town Works Health and Fitness Centre, the gym located at the Omniplex, has seen an impact in its numbers given the addition of a new fitness centre in Drayton Valley.

The discussion came about at the governance and priorities meeting on March 4.

"Those numbers have been calculated. We do see a decrease in our fitness centre. We do not have full demographics yet but we do know we have seen a decrease," said director of community services Annette Driscoll.

She added the town was able to put together some comments about user satisfaction which will help them in planning next steps.

"We have also been able to receive some comments about satisfaction levels of some of those individuals who have gone over to the other fitness centre. That information will help us in planning what we need to do in our own centre," said Driscoll.

Deputy Mayor Dean Shular pointed out that the addition of a new business drives numbers and the town needs to look at ways over time.

"A very new business coming in is going to suddenly take a chunk," said Shular.

Mayor Glenn McLean noted that he would like to see some percentages because earlier in the calendar year, the town had seen an increase in numbers.

"I would like to get some relative numbers," said McLean.

BY-LAW REVIEW

EVENTS POLICY

The town currently does not have a policy or guideline in place for individuals or groups wishing to host special events on town-owned property.

Administration prepared a draft policy document which councillors discussed at the meeting.

According to the special event permit policy, the town would need a minimum of eight weeks in advance to get everything organized. Some councillors debated that the time period was too long. Some of the wording of the policy was debated as well.

The draft policy will be looked at once again at town council meeting.

PARKS AND PUBLIC FACILITIES BY-LAW

A draft parks and public facilities by-law was discussed at the last governance meeting.

The current facilities by-law from 1986 is limited in scope, stated the policy document.

Coun. Dave Shular noted that he would like to see the by-law be separate for parks and campgrounds, thereby giving an immediate attention to membership is just over a 100 members.

Her plans are to analyse chamber's effectiveness in the area.

"It needs to be separate where under the park by-law we can give more authority to police and by-law etc. to those people to have the ability to remove the person from the park rather than going through this process," said Shular.

Coun. Payrell Wheeler debated the importance of having the park access hours, which according to the draft by-law, will see no registered person in parks between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m.

"I just don't see any point in restricting. No person shall be allowed in the park between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m., if there is an issue then you remove them, but just to say there is no one allowed between those hours to me seems unnecessary," said Wheeler.

The draft will be looked at again at town council meeting.

ESSENTIAL SERVICES

Drayton Valley Town economic development officer Sherry Poole has been in conversation with the Drayton Valley and District Chamber of Commerce who have planned various programs for this year.

"With our strong business activity and growth in the area, there is a huge growth for the chamber," said Poole.

She shared some statistics from a study which include town business numbers: 1,074 and 1,074.

Business numbers around 600, and the chamber's membership is just over a 100 members.

Her plans are to analyse chamber's effectiveness in the area.

2015 archery provincials brought to town

About 400 archers from Drayton Valley and area are expected to compete

Judith Kinnison
Western Review

The 2015 National Archery in the Schools Program (NASP) Provincial Tournament will be held at the Drayton Valley Community Centre on April 23 to 25.

The Saskatchewan Archery Association (SAA) Drayton Valley chapter is sponsoring the tournament in partnership with the Brazeau Bowbenders and the Alberta Hunter Education instructors.

Jeanne Trillie, SAA Drayton Valley chapter provincial organizer, said this is the first time the tournament is being brought to town.

"It is usually held in Edmonton and this is the first year that it is being held outside of Edmonton," she said. "One of the big reasons it is able to be hosted outside of a major city of Edmonton is because of the support of groups like SCI and the Brazeau Bowbenders. There is also great support from the coaches and the parents of the archers in our community that have allowed us to bring the provincials here."

Archery plays a big role in the lives of many local youth, which is also one of the reasons why the tournament is being held in Drayton Valley this year.

"We have the NASP in all the schools in Drayton Valley, excluding one, and it has had such a big impact on the kids here," Trillie said. "There are so many local archers participating in the sport that it is just made sense to bring it here."

Approximately 1,200 archers in grades 4 to 12 from across Alberta, about 400 of which are archers from Drayton Valley and area, are expected to participate in the tournament.

Aside from the archery tournament, other fun activities geared towards families are also planned for the four-day event.

"We are going to have some activities and games for the archers and their families to participate in when they are not shooting," Trillie said. "We are going to have video fishing, video hunting game, and face-painting. We are also going to have some archery-related or outdoor-related booths there as well."

Not only will the event bring the archery community together, it will also promote what Drayton Valley has to offer.

"It showcases the businesses in our community, the restaurants, the hotels and all the other recreational opportunities that we have in the area and it might be bringing people in Drayton Valley who have never been here before or might not have a reason to come visit and now they do," Trillie said. "We want to highlight all that Drayton Valley has to offer in our community."

Brazeau Bowbenders Archery Club President Leonard Chelchew echoed what Trillie said and added that the community is supportive of bringing the provincials to town.

A lot of the places in the province do not know a lot about Drayton Valley. They think we are simply an oil town and we have a lot of things to show whether it be the river systems we have here or the outdoors, but we have a real vibrant and strong community and a lot of support in the community for what we do here," Chelchew said. "We were given a very large grant from Hotel and Tourism Association and that is going to go a long way to putting the value that we can into this event to really showcase Drayton Valley."

Residents of Drayton Valley and area are encouraged to support the event by coming out to watch the tournament.

"We are definitely asking anyone who wants to come out to come check out what NASP is about," Trillie said. "There are so many local archers involved and the kids' faces speak to how awesome the program is when you go and watch them shoot. You will see how excited they are and how much they are smiling and it is really awesome sports to watch."

Claffey said he would like to see local archers become Olympic archers someday.

"When we brought NASP in we did have a motive. We wanted to take these kids from the NASP setting and hopefully get them into winter games setting," he said. "We are actually taking the training the next step up after that. These kids can hopefully compete at Alberta winter games and maybe they can become Olympic shooters."

For more information about the tournament or to volunteer for the event, contact Jeanne Trillie at jtrillie@draytonvalley.ca.

County ups funding for community halls

News from Brazeau County council on March 3

Mamta Lulla
Western Review

At the March 3 county council meeting, council passed a motion to change the way community halls earn grants.

The amendment to the community hall operating grant will reflect a step grid system based on operating expenses.

Community halls that have operating cost of less than $5,000 will receive a minimum of $2,500 while those with costs between $5,000 and $10,000 such as the Violet Grove Community Hall and Club will receive $4,000. Buck Creek Community Club, Lodgepole Recreational Society and Rocky Rapids Community Hall and League will now receive about $5,500 from the county as they sit with an operating cost of $10,000 to $15,000.

The change meant an increase in the budgeted operating grant by $30,000 to a total of $65,000.

The changes came about as assessments were conducted. Reports showed concerns such as continued decrease in volunteer support, growing operating and maintenance struggles and lack of attendance at community events.

Many of the smaller halls indicated they were grateful for the existing funding from the county identifying that the grant offered was proportionate to the operating expenses they experienced, while larger halls suffering costs and larger maintenance requirements. That showed a disproportionate allocation of funding.

meaning larger halls in the county tend to suffer operational strains.

A milestone in Catholic education

St. Anthony School is celebrating 50 years

Mamta Lulla
Western Review

St. Anthony is celebrating a semi-centennial of Catholic education in Drayton Valley with a weekend of events planned for mid-April.

"In July 1964, construction started on this site for St. Anthony School and first classes started in January 1965. The school was officially opened and blessed in April 1965, so April 2015 makes 50 years," said secretary of St. Anthony School, Georgina McGee.

"Our school opened in Apr. 1965 so it's been almost to the day we are doing the celebration," said St. Anthony School Principal Jamie McLeese.

He has been with the school since August 2014.

"I have just started here but I'm learning about the history and where some of the traditions that we currently have in the building came from and how they started. There is a lot of rich history here in the school and I think it's great to celebrate," said McLeese.

While he has started recently, McGee has been part of the school for 30 years.

She said the school is dear to her because her husband's uncle and her mother-in-law were two people instrumental in bringing Catholic education in Drayton Valley.

The school first opened with five members on the board, nineteen teachers and 220 students.

Events planned include an open house on Apr. 18, with memorabilia arranged in different rooms.

"We will have old memorabilia, old yearbooks, old school journals and different pictures. We are even asking our alumni, previous students and staff if they can loan any stuff so we can put them on display. We would do that by different years by the 80s the 70s the 60s in different rooms and that way get everyone together with the people they have gone to school with," said McLeese.

At 5 p.m. that same day will be a community mass at St. Anthony Church and a dinner at 6:30 p.m. - an event that will see people who are of drinking age, specifically for alumni, past students, past staff and members on the board and other community partners. The event is arranged by the school with tickets being sold there.

The next morning, on Apr. 19, a pancake breakfast suitable for all ages will be arranged.

"It's just a sort of closure for the weekend. We thought we would have a get together which would include family. People would like to bring their kids with them if they are coming from out of town," said McLeese.

Regarding the importance of Catholic education, McGee said it is important for community to have a choice.

"People need to have the right to practice their faith and children need to know that God is very real. And so it's not putting down any other faiths but we choose to worship in the Catholic faith. We welcome all faiths, but that way get everyone together with the people they have gone to school with," said McLeese.

25 years of music fest

Volunteers to be festival's highlight

Justine Kimoden
Western Review

Drayton Valley Music Festival Committee will celebrate the 25th anniversary of its annual Drayton Valley Kin Club Performing Arts Festival from Apr. 13 to Apr. 24 at the Eleanor Pickup Arts Centre.

Anne Murphy, committee member, said that the festival has undergone some changes over the past 25 years.

"This is the 25th year of our festival and it started off as a two-day event and now it runs for two weeks," Murphy said. "Now we have speech, piano, voice, band, instrumental, choir, voice and musical theatre and at the end we have a final concert."

Of all the performances at the festival, musical theatre is an audience favourite.

"The most popular is musical theatre. It is very entertaining," said festival volunteer and coordinator Vicki Pay. "Sometimes it is solo, sometimes it is duet and they are singing a song from a musical and they dress up and they act and they do the motion or the dancing."

The festival will be an opportunity for musicians to get feedback on their performances.

"We try and encourage everybody to come, perform and learn something new," Murphy said. "We try not to make it competitive. We work hard for that as a committee [to provide] a friendly environment for kids to come and to do what they love to do and to critique just to help them improve but not be negative about it."

Festival performers will also get a chance to perform at a provincial level.

"After they have performed, the adjudicator will recommend performances for this final showcase, and they will also recommend some of the performers to go to the next level of performance which is usually in Edmonton and it is called provincial level," Murphy said. "We have had tons of kids that have gone through there and many performers have gone on to do extremely well and represent Drayton Valley."

There are three reasons as to why the festival has lasted for 25 years, according to Murphy.

"Volunteers are a huge part. If we did not have them, we could not run it," she said. "Second, participation and support from teachers because we have schools involved, we have private students involved. Then lastly, the support of parents. They pay for lessons."

With volunteers playing a big role in the festival, Murphy said it is important to recognize them for their time and service.

"What we are doing different is we are honouring the volunteers," Murphy said. "We are going to have a special program for them and we will have a display [showcasing the number of years the volunteers have been in service]."

Aside from volunteers, Murphy said she is also grateful for the support the committee has received from sponsors and the community.

"The Kin Club is our main financial sponsor; however, with extra costs for running [the festival] and with no grants from the arts anymore, we do have to do some of our own fund raising," she said. "We look for fund raising and the community has been amazing. We do get great local support."

Pro Rodeo comes to Drayton Valley in May

Drayton Valley Pro Rodeo Society will bring in the best cowboys and stock to town work in the patch and it will be great for them to be able to compete in this community."

The three-day event will be suitable for the whole family and includes competitions like bull riding and ladies' barrel racing.

"For anyone who has never been to a rodeo, it is a western heritage sport and we will have the barrel racing, saddle rack riding, bull riding, and ladies' barrel racing," Pletsch said. "And it will be a good two or three hour entertainment for the whole family and hopefully people come out."

Aside from providing entertainment for locals, the event will serve as a fundraiser for a few groups in the community.

"We are working together with Drayton Valley Thunder Junior A Hockey Club, who are going to host the beer gardens for the weekend, they get 100 per cent of the proceeds from the beer gardens and they are also doing the security for us," Pletsch said. "We are working together with CT for DV group. They are Drayton Valley Community Health Foundation and we are allowing them to do the three 50/50s every night and they get 100 per cent of the proceeds for that because what they are doing is great. It will benefit the whole community and you have to have community events for a community to live."

The society is looking for sponsors to cover some of the operational costs of the event.

"The budget to put an event like this on is about double of what it is for amateur rodeo, prize money for the cowboys, stock for the competitors, moving the dirt in and out of the omniplex as well as the clean up and the cost associated with that," Pletsch said. "Rodeo personnel, pickup men, timers, and judges, all of those people have to be paid as well."

Everyone in the community is encouraged to support the event either by becoming a sponsor or a spectator.

"As a sponsor, we all know that without community events that a community is not much of a place. Community is some place where people can get together for social gathering and enjoy themselves," Pletsch said.

"As a spectator, we are bringing the same cowboys here as you can see at the Calgary Stampede, the Ponoka Stampede, the Canadian Finals Rodeo, and the Wrangler National Finals Rodeo in Las Vegas. We are going to bring the best of rodeo in North America in Drayton Valley."

For more information, visit www.draytonvalleypro rodeo.com or contact Ivon Pletsch at (780) 542-1047.

Congratulations to our school swim team who had the most successful season of challenges and events.

A reminder that even though our lives of pink and pink shirt day are past, we are still standing up against bullying at our school. Doing the right thing is not a one-time deal.

March 9-13 is Substitute Teacher Appreciation Week. The Alberta Teachers' Association reminds us that "Every day substitute teachers provide professional service in schools throughout Alberta. The role of the substitute teacher may be different from that of the regular teacher in some respects, but it is equally demanding, equally essential and equally professional."

Please help us show our appreciation to our "guest" teachers.

March 17 may be St. Patrick's Day for the rest of the world, but for students and staff at Drayton Elementary, it is OUR day - Event GREEN Day! And we enjoy being green by wearing green clothing and by using recycled materials to create our water-bec.

Anyone is welcome to celebrate the day with us - just BE GREEN!

On Feb 27 the grade five finalized the staff and students when they produced a book about by combining year, sugar and water. Little grade five students had their hands in the dough making a chocolate reaction which resulted in light, and airy buns for a delicious snack later in the day.

March is going to be a very busy month.

March 17 students and staff are asked to dress up in everything green for St. Patrick's Day.

A long distance runner who will be passing through Drayton Valley middle of March is not just running from one end to the other of the country, but running across Canada and back.

Edward Dostaler, started his journey from Victoria in B.C. and will head all the way to N.L. But it doesn't end there, because he will be journeying right back the same distance, all to cure Alzheimer's and Breast Cancer.

"I go there and turn around and come back,"

said Dostaler.

He said he plans to be in Drayton Valley area between March 20 and March 28.

"I wanted to try and raise awareness of Breast Cancer and Alzheimer's and hopefully eliminate those two horrible diseases from this planet," he said.

Covering about 21,000 km on ground, the 26-year-old is attempting the run that is a solo mission without any support, but running across Canada and back.

Edward Dostaler, started his journey from Victoria in B.C. and will head all the way to N.L. But it doesn't end there, because he will be journeying right back the same distance, all to cure Alzheimer's and Breast Cancer.

"I go there and turn around and come back,"

but I definitely do have a four season tent."

The passion to help raise awareness for the two diseases comes from personal experience. His grandmother was diagnosed with Alzheimer's.

"I have seen how hard it his people," he said.

One of his professors was an advocate for Breast Cancer until he died, and Dostaler took it upon himself to run in his honour.

He said the run costs around $30,000 with about $17,000 that has been raised with sponsorship which will go towards daily food and water supplies.

"If people want to donate food, that would also be great," he said.

People have the ability to donate to their respective provinces through his website: fastedycanada.com.

Bereavement support available

➤ An eight week long program is coming to the hospital

Justine Kinnison
Western Review

Anyone who has recently lost a loved one can sign up for a Bereavement Support Program being offered at the Drayton Valley Hospital and Care Centre.

The eight-week long program is being offered for free, thanks to Alberta Health Services (AHS). The program has been around for about six years and is offered annually.

Megan Lemire, coordinator for Volunteer Resources, said the program is open to anyone in the community who is coming from the loss of a loved one.

"They go in-depth about bereavement and healing," she said. "This program is to help people and support them through their losses. It is important for people to work through grief together so they know they are not alone."

The program will go in-depth in understanding grief and the process it takes to get through it.

"The program takes participants through the grief process and also helps consider such questions as 'where do I begin' and 'who am I now,'" Lemire said. "Each week covers a different topic such as impact of grief, family dynamics, ongoing changes and challenges, support systems, anger or regret."

Past participants have formed friendships with fellow group members.

"Participants throughout the eight weeks will share stories and their journey. It becomes a very cohesive support group," Lemire said. "Many times long after the program has ended, the participants still reach out to each other. It is just mostly knowing that you are not alone and there are people in our community that are going through the same thing."

A minimum of six participants are needed to run the program. Program runs from March 30 to May 18 every Monday from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Pembina room at Drayton Valley Hospital and Care Centre.

To register, contact Megan Lemire at (780) 514-7171. Dead-line for registrations is on March 20.

Not everything you read online is true

Dear Working Wife:
I saw an internet ad saying that I could make $1,000 a day on the Internet working from home. That sounds too good to be true. Is it?

Signed Wary
Dear Wary:
I doubt that a company that can afford to pay its employees $1,000 a day to work from home has to do much advertising. The Internet is filled with work from home scam masquerading as real jobs.

1. The job title, duties and compensation are vague.
2. They show little interest in your qualifications/skills.
3. The job offer is a spam e-mail or a web-buiter advertisement.
4. They pressure you to pay train fees/equipment/software for the "job".
5. You are required to repackage items sent to you and ship them abroad.
6. The company is hard to identify, locate or contact via telephone and e-mail.

7. You are required to transfer or wire money out of your personal bank account.

8. Unprofessional: poor grammar, spelling, web design, webmail e-mail address.

9. They want your Social Insurance Number or banking information they can deposit your earnings instead, they will use the information to steal your identity or your money.

10. Too good to be true: guaranteed big money, no risk, no experience, no effort needed.

You can also check suspicious job opportunities using the Scam Detector app, which describes more than 800 scams, including 64 employment scams.

The Scam Detector (<http://scam-detector.com>) provides a weekly top-10 list of the latest scams in partnership with the Better Business Bureau of Central and Northern Alberta.

The email processing scam hit number eight in January 2015. This scam promises that you will get paid $20 for every email that you process. All you have to do is pay a registration fee. Once you've registered and paid your fee, you will not receive any work and will not be able to contact the company.

Other scams involve your bank account. The "employer" will quickly hire you and then ask you for your banking information so they can deposit your earnings. Instead, they will use the information to steal your identity or your money.

"Employers" in another common scam, and you a cheque to deposit in your bank account and ask you to write a cheque to someone else for a little less. You get to keep the difference. The only problem is that the cheque they sent you is fake, yours is real, and you are now out hundreds of dollars.

March is Fraud Prevention Month. For tips and information on Fraud Prevention Month, visit the Canadian Anti-Fraud Centre at www.phonebusters.com.

If you really want a job where you can work from home, you might want to try applying to legitimate employers for traditional jobs that you can do from home and then discuss the idea of telecommuting.

Technological advances and potential cost savings are making more companies open to the idea of employees working from home.

For home based business ideas, search the tip sheets on the Alberta Learning Information Service (ALIS) web site for "telecommuting".

For more tips on preventing fraud, check out the Central and Northern Alberta Better Business Bureau's Scam Stopper web page at www.bbb.org/scam. Good luck!
